THE NEW ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Edwards Pierpont, the new Attorney General, belongs to a family of Norman-French origin, and is a direct descendant of the Rev. James Pierpont, one of the founders of Yale College. He was born in New Haven, Conn., on the 4th of March, 1817, received a preparatory education at the once celebrated "Old Grammar School," of which Rev. Noah Porter, Jr., was principal, entered Yale College in 1835, and four years after graduated with high honors. Immediately upon leaving college he entered the office of the late Judge Daggett, under whom he studied law, and in 1840 was admitted to the bar. Leaving the bar, he settled at Columbus, Ohio, where he formed a partnership with P. B. Wixon, a prominent lawyer of the State, and at the time holding the position of State reporter. In 1846 Mr. Pierpont left Ohio and again took up his residence in New York. He immediately began the practice of his profession in that city, having to struggle with some of the ablest lawyers in the country, and soon attained a front rank at the bar and a large and lucrative practice. In 1857 he was elected as Judge of the Superior Court, to the vacancy caused by the death of the venerable Chief Justice Oakley. He remained upon the bench until 1860, when he resigned and resumed practice at the bar. When the war broke out Mr. Pierpont promptly pronounced in favor of coercive measures as a means of restoring the Union, although he had been in sympathy with the Democratic ideas and principles, and a strong opponent of Mr. Lincoln. In 1867 he was elected by the Democracy of New York city a member of the State Constitutional Convention, in the proceedings of which he took a prominent part. In the same year, notwithstanding his affiliations with the Democratic party, he accepted the position tendered him by the Attorney General and Secretary of State to conduct the prosecution against John H. Surratt, when the latter was placed on trial for complicity in the assassination of President Lincoln. The Congressional policy toward the Southern States met with no sympathy from him at that period, and although he did not endorse the course of President Johnson's reconstruction, he continued to act with the Democratic party until 1868, and was a member of the State Convention of that year which nominated John T. Hoffman for Governor. But the nomination of ex-Governor Seymour for President by the Democracy did not meet his approval, and shortly after that event took place he came out in support of General Grant, defying his position and explaining the motives which actuated his course, at the same time subscribing the sum of $12,000 toward defraying the election expenses. This course severed Mr. Pierpont's connection with the Democratic party, and he has since acted invariably with the Republicans although always regarded as having conservative leanings. On April 2, 1869, just before the inauguration of General Grant as President, he was appointed United States District Attorney for New York city, a position which he held until July, 1870, when he was succeeded by Hon. Noah Davis, Jr. He has since then been kept busy in the courts with his private practice.

THE PARIS HAN FAIR.—The annual event known as "La Foire aux Jambons" has been going on for the last two days and finishes tomorrow. Formerly this fair was only a collection of booths for the sale of hams cured in all parts of France. This special feature of it still exists, and from the Place de la Bastille to the beginning of the old Canal of St. Martin stretches a line of booths bearing written inscriptions which record the names of the various departments of France represented under the form of ham. On one of these signs a patriotic pork butcher has inscribed the name of Metz and surrounded it with grape. This simple mixture of patriotism and trade would seem to be lucrative as well as touching, for the booth of the saddened vendor of pork is literally besieged by customers. At one end of the fair real hams, ass and mule sausages are exposed for sale, but do not seem to attract many customers, for there exists a certain prejudice against the lower classes against this sort of food, and those who would buy are restrained from the fear of being seen and laughed at. After these last stalls begin another kind of fair, where are exposed on trustles all the cheap articles which are in daily use among the people, from the old straw chair of the brazier to the metal show of the brazier, who live in a particular quarter, and who, it should be added, ask exceptionally low prices. Formerly, these latter never left their own quarter, where they manufactured for the retail dealers. But now-a-days their business is not so good as it was. Household economists have suppressed many pots and pans as unnecessary and luxurious, and so the braziers are fain to come and try whether they cannot attract some customers among the large crowds who circulate through three-quarters of a mile, and where there are so many people that to the day it is quite impossible to walk at one's ease, and everyone must go with the crowd.

The Ham Fair is followed after a day's interval by the Ginger bread Fair. Every year the makers of this delicacy immortalize the popular personages of the day, and during the government of M. Thiers he never failed to enjoy the privilege of being eaten in effigy. But this year popularity has deserted politicians, for I am told of only one new character, and that is Bazez suspended by a rope. The police—for even gingerbread passes under that ordeal—have suppressed Bazez; but the manufacturer has preserved the rope, which he styles la corde fantastique. The gingerbread sellers are right after all; for it any one looks back on the past year he will see that France there are few who have become popular. Few of these who have attained power have retained their popularity, and what was really notorious during the past year was the rope of the ex-prisoner of the Ile Ste. Marguerite.—Cor, London Times.

Brugere once said: "An inconstant woman is one who is no longer in love; a false woman is one who is already in love with another person; a foolish woman is she who neither knows whom she loves, or whether she loves or no; and the indifferent woman, one who does not love at all."

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
Macon, Ga., and Philadelphia.

The symptoms of Liver Complaint are uneasiness and pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and is mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general constipated, sometimes alternating with lax. The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. Often complaining of weakness, debility, and low spirits. Sometimes many of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the liver is generally the organ most involved.

Nearly all diseases originate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 40 years, and hundreds of good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

The Clergy.
"My wife and self have used the Regulator for years, and testify to its great virtues."—Rev. J. R. Folder, Perry Ga.

SELL THE BEST
DOLLAR CORSET

IN THE CITY.
Dress Makers recommend it as being the best Corset to fit a dress over, because it is cut in such a manner that the front and back seem to fit like seams to a dress.

And it is superior to any other Corset now in use, because its peculiar style of cutting gives sufficient fullness at the bosom, without folding at the top; gradually and closely fitting to, and over the hips, is longer front and back than ordinary Corsets, and in fact is the only Corset cut in this form.

In addition to the DOLLAR CORSET will be found a large assortment of other makes at the following prices—$1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $2.50, $3.50 and $5.
